This entered his left is said that Waldroup met death cont-sleeve just below the elbow and plowed cont-sleeve just below shot fred by the assassin. This entered his left cont-sleeve just below the elbow and plowed along the surface of the left arm, which must have been raised nearly parallel with his elbow, passing out again near the cuff. The flesh was not cut by the ball, and no surgical attention was necessary. A bright, red line, however, shows the course it took. Diligent but fruitless search has been made for some trace of the ball after it passed out of the sleeve, by the authorities and by curious people visiting the scene. The only by curious people visiting the scene. The only conclusion reached is that it passed through the door-way from the ladies' room into the main door-way from the ladies' room into the main sitting-room, and again through the door leading out to the trains. Jesup Sentinel.

A colored man living near Jesup, missing a watermeion from his patch, immediately set out on the track of the thief, and soon came upon him—a man about his own size and weight—preparing to eat the meion, whereupon he told him to lay himself upon the ground and submit to a good thrashing or he would cut his throat. The thief obeyed and the gwer cut him three or four black gums and wore them to a "fras" on him, while he uttered screams that might be heard for a half mile. "Now," said the owner, "take the meion and march right through Jesup ahead of me, or I'll kill you." A resolution was in troduced by Mr. Twiggs to authorize the governor to buy for the state two volumes of original official manuscript of the col ony of Georgia, to be offered at public auction in London, England, on the 11th of July, 1881. The finance committee reported against its passage, though the eloquent young member from Floyd county, Mr. Seaborn Wright, with eight others, made a minority report. In the house Judge Twiggs, Mr. Pope Barrow, Mr. Branson and Mr. Wright made strong speeches for it. The vote was so complicated in a parliamentary way that the result of an adverse ballot can hardly be ed, however, and it is understood that a reconsideration will be attempted this morning, and ought to succeed. The volumes are a part of the executive minutes of the state. They contain the official transactions of the colony, beginning five years after Georgia was settled by General Oglethorpe, and continuing tant 'years of which we have no rec ord at all. The official reports of General Oglethorpe to the trustees of the colony in London, of which the earl of Egmont was president, are given describing the progress and growth of the gallant little colony from which has sprung the commonwealth. The value of these volumes cannot be over estimated. They are priceless historical records of our state. and should be bought at any cost. It is alike a matter of state honor and practical utility to purchase these volumes for our state archives. It would be a shame, indeed, that at an auction of Georgia's historical chronicles Georgia alone should not think them worthy of possession.

These volumes are part of a collection of American historical papers, made by Henry Stevens, the antiquarian, who is to sell, from the 11th to the 14th of July, at auction, his entire collection.

Some New Books. Colonel John W. Forney has served a long openticeship as editor and author, if not apprenticeship as editor and author, it has as statesman. In the first be has had the assistance of a certain Dr. R. Shelton Mac-Kenzle, in the second the aid of Rev. W. M. Baker, and in the third the co-operapoliticians of our time, including the late Andrew Johnson, who conferred upon his friend, the colonel, the degree of D.D. As an editor Colonel Forney has been moderately successful, but as a novelist, in spite of the assistance of Rev. W. M. Baker, he must be accounted a conspicuous failure. In his "Anecdotes of "Public Men," however, the second volume of which has just been sent us by Harper & Brothers, Colonel Forney has struck a psculiarly happy voin. His reminiscences sess a historical as well as a contempo raneous interest, and much the larger por tion of his "anecdotes," which are not anec tes but estimates of public men by a super ficially shrewd newspaper reporter, will be found to be of permanent importance as a contribution to our knowledge of the charcteristics of some of our best known pubmen. The newspaper flavor of the necdotes is not at all disagreeable, and the ond volume ought to have as large a sale as the first. The book comes to THE CON stitution through J. J. & S. P. Richards. Through the same firm the Messrs. Harper send us the Memoirs of Prince Metrnich. We have already reviewed these entertaining reminiscences of one of the most extraordinary statesmen of Europe. The Harpers have is ued the volumes in their usual handsome style, and have embodied in the first what seems upon our list—a large volume containing four hundred and fifty-odd pages and two hundred illustrations? In he language of Pinafore, it is "The Cat." It will thus be seen that the cat has nin ives and one large book, and is therefore of considerable more importance than a candidate for vice-president. The particu-lar cat which is the subject of the entertaining memoir before us is the what a narrow escape the country has an intimation of how the tortoise-shell

—Leo XIII. was in St. Peter's a few weeks ago, and the doors, as the custom is,
were closed, although it is believed that the pope would willingly, so far as he was concerned himself, have had them open. He entered from the doorway leading out of his apartments in the vatican and was received by the chapter and clergy. He paused for prayers before the virgin's altar,
in the Gregorian chapel, went into St.
Peter's crypt, and gave his ring to all who were present for them to kiss. In the gardens of the vatican he is having built another mile of crarisge road. Alrealy three miles have been made for him there.

Forty Years' Experience of an Old Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrur is the prescription of one of the best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and has been used for forty years with never-failing success by millions of mothers for their children. It relieves the child from pain, cures dysentery and diarrhosa, griping in the bowels and wind-colic. By giving health to the child it rests the mother. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Mr. Branson, of Bartow, thought it would be a disgrace not to buy these records, and the gentlemen waste enough time to buy them in the windy speeches they are making Lagither. I call the previous question cannot be called in the committee of the whole.

Mr. Mi ler again spoke in favor of the adverse report. It is not the amount involved that is important but its the principle. I would not vote one cent of the people's money to buy what is not worth one cent to the people of Georgia. If Colonel Jones needs this manuscript let him buy it, and the practice medicine without license.

Mr. Twiggs said that the gentleman mis-represented his position. He desired to purchase these volumes for the state and not for any individual. Mr. Miller moved that the committee rise and report that the majority report be agreed to. rise and report that the majority report be agreed to.

SHALL WE HAVE A STATE CAPITOL.

Interviews With Some Leading Members of the Legislature.

It has been imagined for some time that the present session of the legislature at the present session in the legislature at the present session of the legislature at the present session steps will be taken to start a new building."

Here we have been forced to stay in the old one up to this time. I believe taken to start a new building."

We might fill columns with interviews of similar tenor, but enough has been published to show the drift of opinion in the long that at the present session steps will be taken to start a new building." something definite would be done in re-pard to building a new capitol, but we . In our interviews with senators published prise, to tell you what a crowd is coming and no ordinary preparation will be sufficient. There will be thousands and thousands of people to be cared for and Atlanta cannot afford to ask them here and then fail to have proper accommodations for them. Another thing, I would call your attention to is the fact that in many of the western cities Atlanta is put down as having about 30,000 people and only three hotels. Your people ought to do yourselves justice and see that the city gets credit for her full hotel capacity and for her 40 000 people. "I was surprised to find such a general desire to come to the exposition. It can be made a grand thing for Atlanta and the south. I shall rejoice in its success and it is with the desire to make you prepare fully to meet the demands upon you that I say these things. You must prepare for an enormous crowd." quarries."

Mr. Foster, of Morgan, says: "I am in favor of building, and of making an appropriation so as to start at once. It will take several years to finish it."
Mr. Roney, of McDuffie, says: "I am anxious to see the work started and ready to vote for an appropriation. I think the matter will be started at the present session."

Mr. Miller, of Houston, says: "The state is just now getting in the condition of a man who is able to pay his debts out of his surplus revenue. I do not think we ought to disturb this condition by incurring extraordinary expenses until we have reduced the debt. We had better content ourselves at present with enlarging the lunatic asylum and doing what is absolutely necessary, not building a new capitol as a luxury, until we are able to afford such a luxury. Mr. Barrow, of Clarke, says: "I have now prepared a bill providing for the building of a new capitol which I shall introduce on next Monday. This bill provides that the capitol shall not cost over one million and a quarter of dollars; that it shall be complete within five years, and that its plant and construction shall be placed in the charge of three commissioners, one civil engineer, one lawyer, and one gentleman accustomed to public works. The bill is not thoroughly matured in all its details as yet, but will be introduced on Monday and I think that it or some similar bill will certainly pass the present house. I am indebted to Mr. W. W. Thomas, an architect of Athens, for the suggestions embodied in this bill—and they are thus the views of one having a practical knowledge of the subject."

Mr. Gray, of Catoca, says: "My record on the capitol question is made up. I think we need a new capitol and it lea

The Question of the Sale of the Library Building Settled at Last.
The directors of the Young Men's library asso tion of the sale or non-sale to the members, ye erday was designated as the day upon which the ote should be taken. The day was not marked by any special event aside from the viting, which resulted as follows: For sale, 11; for non-sale 37 resulted as follows: For sale, 11; for non-sale 37. This made a total of 48 votes, and settled the question in favor of the present quasters. A meeting of the directors was held last night to receive the vote and take steps to perfect the lease by the terms of which the library will receive $1,700 per annum for the rent of the stores. The greatest good feeling prevailed during the time of the voting.
